MORE TROOPS FOR MINE ZONE

ADJUTANT GENERAL ORDERS GUARDSMEN TO DANGER SECTION

Anti-Congregating Order
Enforced; Two
Are Dead

COLUMBUS, O., April 16.—Adjutant-General Frank Henderson today announced he was increasing the number of state troops in Harrison County's troubled mine strike area by addition of 250 men.

The move was made, Henderson said, in an effort to prevent possible loss of life in an uprising and after a personal tour convinced him the present military establishment was inadequate.

Companies A and B, 145th Infantry, Cleveland, Company C, Canton, and Company H, Youngstown, will be moved into the county.

There are 350 officers and men on duty at present.

CADIZ, O., April 16.—A tense calm settled over the Harrison County coal fields today as 300 National Guardsmen grimly set about enforcing a county proclamation, prohibiting strikers from congregating within a mile of the county's six mines.

More troops were expected to be mobilized to enforce the order which was issued by Sheriff Maurice Wooster after two men had died and more than a score injured in a series of clashes between strikers and workers.

The proclamation cited that a condition of lawlessness existed, interfering with peaceful citizens. It forbade more than three people from congregating in one place within a mile of the mines and called upon citizens to observe it.

Strikers responded to the drastic order with a sullen silence which observers feared may flare into violence if the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. mine at Adena, center of the disorders, reopens next week. The mine was closed after one striker had been killed and more than a score injured in a pitched battle two days ago.

The second fatality was added yesterday when Carol Nygren, 55, was frightened to death after being chased from the Harmon Strip mine by a crowd of pickets. Four rioters were injured in the same disorder.

Nygren was one of a crew operating a steam shovel when a mob of 200 strike sympathizers advanced on them yesterday.

The crew fled and Nygren's body was found later. There were no marks of violence and Coroner John W. Watson of Harrison County said he probably died of a heart attack brought on by fear and excitement. Fellow workers found Nygren's body in a ditch beside the mine car tracks, his overalls were found rolled up and hidden behind a stump, a quarter of a mile from his body.

Although Goodyear officials at Akron announced they would keep their mine closed, the general belief was that an attempt to operate it will be made early next week.

HOME WRECKED BY TIME BOMB

CINCINNATI, O., April 16.—A terrific explosion, apparently from a time bomb, wrecked the home of David Mitchell in the residence section of Bond Hill late last night. Homes were shaken in the neighborhood and the roar was heard seven or eight miles away.

Mitchell, his wife, and sister, Miss Mary Mitchell, of Hamilton, O., left the house about two hours before the explosion occurred. Police said all three might have been killed had they been at home.

Mitchell said he left the lights burning when he left the house. Police investigators said the men who planted the bomb evidently believed the family was at home. Wreckage indicated the explosive had been placed in a garage can against the rear of the house, which was blown out.

Residents of nearby houses were thrown from chairs but no injuries were reported.

WOMAN AMNESIA VICTIM IMPROVES

CLEVELAND, April 16.—A woman amnesia victim, who said her condition was caused by grief over the death of her daughter in an automobile accident, St. Valentine's Day, was tentatively identified today as Mrs. Margaret McLane of New York City or its environs.

The woman, who is gradually recovering her memory in City Hospital, said she was Mrs. McLane when her daughter, Jean, was killed. She said she thought her home was in Belleville, N. J., although police of that town said no person by that name lived there.

HOOVER ECONOMY SUGGESTIONS

WASHINGTON, April 16.—President Hoover's $200,000,000 government economy bill, as laid before the house economy committee, includes these items:

1. Compulsory 30-day, payless vacation for all employees receiving more than $1,200 a year; a five-day week for all per diem workers.
 2. Give the President authority to reorganize the federal departments and commissions.
 3. Charge for test work done for private industry by the Bureau of Standards and Bureau of Mines.
 4. Establish a naval board to recommend abolition of various shore stations.
 5. Transfer cost of maintenance of Philippine scouts to the Philippine government.
 6. Reduce the government's printing bill.
 7. Eliminate federal vocational education appropriations.
 8. Postpone construction of new heating plant for government buildings in Washington.
 9. Abolish army and navy transport service.
 10. Increase patent fees.
- Chairman McDuffie also announced most of the committee's own economy program. Most of the items were identical with those in the Hoover plan.
- The committee, however, voted to recommend consolidation of the war and navy departments. This proposition has been before the house all session, with no action taken. The committee also proposed a 25 per cent increase in the price of government publications sold to the public.

HEADS RKO-NBC

As the culmination of a drastic reorganization program, M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co., has been named president of the gigantic entertainment interests of Radio-Keith-Orpheum. He will continue as head of NBC and will be chairman of the boards of RKO Pictures, Keith-Albee-Orpheum corporation and Orpheum Circuit. Five years ago Aylesworth, who is now 45, with no knowledge of radio, took over NBC and built the enterprise into the largest broadcasting company in the world.

PLANE FLARE BURNS AT LINDBERGH HOME EARLY ON SATURDAY

Police Deny Signal;
Activities Mark
Baby Search

HOPEWELL, N. J., April 16.—A magnesium flare lighted early today at the home of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh atop Sourland Mountain, illuminated the countryside for miles, and led observers to believe it was a signal having a significant bearing on efforts to return the flier's kidnapped son.

State police at Trenton said that a state trooper stationed at the Lindbergh home found the flare yesterday. It was described as being an old one, a "dud." The trooper decided to test it, so shortly after midnight he took it into the yard and lighted it.

An aviation expert at Hopewell said the flare was of the type designed for parachute landings at night, costing from $50 to $75 each. He estimated it could have been seen from the air sixty miles distant and from the ground for twenty miles.

The flare burned for five minutes, throwing out an intense white light which was made more conspicuous by the elevation of the Lindbergh home.

Newspapermen watching beyond the deadline set up by the New Jersey State Police reported no planes could be heard overhead, but one could have been beyond hearing and still within sight of the flare. Speculation also centered on whether some motor car might have been waiting in a nearby road for a signal.

An airplane bearing the number NC-9746 was seen flying low over Hopewell early last night.

The lighted flare climaxed a night of more than usual activity at the Lindbergh home. Several visitors were admitted.

Among the late arrivals was a small coupe carrying two men. The license plates on the car were covered with cloths. One of the occupants resembled Dr. John F. Condon, "Jasie" negotiator.

Shortly before the coupe appeared, a girl who identified herself as Great Gray, 28, of Minneapolis, Minn., a friend of the colonel's mother, was stopped by troopers who telephoned the home. Miss Gray was permitted to enter immediately. Her visit was said to have no connection with the kidnapping victim. The flare was set

Wealthy Father Will Not Use Police; Baby Missing

WILMINGTON, Del., April 16.—Nine year old Hilda Brodsky has been threatened with bodily injury, police believe, in what they say was a ransom note mailed special delivery to her wealthy father by supposed kidnapers in Washington, D. C.

The girl failed to appear for classes at school Friday morning and so far as is known has not been seen since that time, although attorneys for her father, a manufacturer, father, announced the kidnapping report "is only a rumor."

Harry Brodsky, jobber and hosiery manufacturer, refused police admittance to his house when they arrived to investigate the supposed kidnapping. And today he declared to confirm or deny the story.

He asked newspaper men to publish no reports and not to telephone "so I can keep this line open."

Brodsky's attitude indicated he proposed to bargain with the supposed kidnapers.

The note Brodsky received by special delivery was understood to threaten harm to his daughter if the police were notified or if ransom were not paid.

The manufacturer, evidently frightened by the activities of the Lindbergh kidnapers was extremely cautious in his dealings both with the newspapers and police. Brodsky has two other daughters and a son.

Harry Rubenstein, Brodsky's attorney, was reported in New York on a secret mission. He sent a message to Wilmington newspapers declaring the kidnapping report "is only a rumor and should not be published." He added that Brodsky did not desire "any article to appear in the papers."

Mayor Frank C. Sparks, of Wilmington, announced he would call a conference of the department of safety today to co-ordinate police activity in the case. It was known that a relative of Brodsky had been questioned by police.

A description of Hilda was sent to New Jersey and Pennsylvania police for transmission on the police teletype. It was said that when last seen the child wore a blue chinchilla coat, blue angora hat and light stockings. She was described as a nervous child with light brown hair and blue eyes.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., April 16.—Robert Rice, two years old, was kidnapped last night from his crib in the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Dyer. The father was said to be a former marine officer.

On information furnished by Dyer, police began a search for the father, who, Dyer told them, had been near the home recently and been warned to keep away.

The parents were said to have separated in New York City in March.

COURT DENIES REHEARING IN SCHOOL FIGHT

Says Test Practical Under Suggested Substitute Plan

Ruling that a test along the lines previously indicated to determine the factor of safety of the load-bearing walls of the incomplete centralized school building in Beavercreek Twp., is a practical one, the Court of Appeals denied Saturday an application for a rehearing.

The application had been filed by counsel for Irvin M. Coy, plaintiff in the taxpayer's injunction suit against The W. H. Howard Construction Co., Columbus, general contractor.

The appellate court agreed, however, to substitute a modified plan for the test suggested.

Under the modified plan now proposed, the test is to be made by first pouring the concrete second floor, and then applying the weight to the whole floor in the proportion that the weight was applied to the slab over two of the steel joists in tests heretofore made by the appeals court judges.

It was suggested by Prof. Joseph N. Bradford, of Ohio State University, chief witness for the plaintiff in the case, that this modified plan, although in his judgment not the proper one, would be fairer and more nearly determine the question at issue—that of the strength of the walls where the steel joists rest.

Counsel for the contractor having indicated a willingness to conduct the experiment upon this basis, the appeals court decreed that after the concrete is poured, a date may be fixed by the contractor upon which the test will be conducted.

Notice of the date and hour is to be given attorneys for the plaintiff at least a week in advance of the date of the test, and it will proceed after the manner indicated in a former opinion of the court, and at a later conference with counsel in Columbus.

At a conference of attorneys in the case with the appellate court

JURY CONSIDERS FATE OF FILKOWSKI

CLEVELAND, O., April 16.—The case of Joe Filkowski, lanky Cleveland gunman, today was to be presented to the jury of six men and six women, which has heard evidence in Filkowski's trial on charges of slaying Tony Verryk, a contractor, during a payroll robbery twenty-two months ago.

In a final plea to the jury, Assistant County Prosecutor Frank T. Cullinan demanded that Filkowski be sentenced to death in the electric chair. Defense Attorney Maurice J. Myer, in his closing argument, contended Filkowski had no part in the killing and asked acquittal.

SIX PERSONS PERISH WHEN FIRE SWEEPS TENEMENT IN NEW YORK

PRESIDENT FAVORS FIVE-DAY WEEK TO AID UNEMPLOYMENT

Economy Bill Urges System To Absorb All
Jobless

WASHINGTON, April 16.—President Hoover favors general adoption of a five-day working week as a major means of increasing employment and re-establishing American business on a firm foundation.

He believes the groundwork already has been laid for business advances which can be consolidated and extended by adoption of the five-day week.

Pointing an example to the rest of the country, the President is urging establishment of a five-day week in the nation's biggest business—the federal government. He has made this cardinal point in his governmental economy and reorganization program. It would provide federal jobs for perhaps 35,000 additional persons and at the same time reduce the total payroll about $90,000,000.

Mr. Hoover feels that concerns now operating full time would do well to follow this example. As business picks up for those now running on shorter schedules, he believes the five-day weeks should be persistently applied until all unemployment is absorbed.

As the prospects for business recovery, the President holds that pessimism of recent weeks has been greatly exaggerated. He believes the time has come when definite advances can be made if resolute courage and confidence are maintained.

The most important specific factor in this belief is his conviction that the banking crisis is definitely over. Mr. Hoover is convinced also that the $2,000,000,000 (B) veterans' bonus will be killed.

He believes the new tax bill will be passed soon and will not seriously affect business.

Balancing of the federal budget is assured.

These are favorable indications which the President believes have been overlooked.

Application of the five-day week principle to the government service was the leading point in a new "economy" bill, which Budget Director Reop in behalf of the White House submitted to the special house economy committee last evening.

The plan calls for a straight five-day week for those who work by the day. Saturday already is a half holiday, so they would lose 52 half days or 26 full days a year. All who work by the year and are paid more than $1,200 would be compelled to take four weeks vacation without pay.

The President estimates this plan not only would effect a saving of $90,000,000 a year, but would enable the government to take on between 30,000 and 35,000 additional employees. The economy committee proposed flat reduction in salaries would create no net jobs.

The house committee met today to go over the President's economy plan. It expects to lay before the house early next week a complete bill providing savings totaling at least $200,000,000—the amount needed, in addition to the $1,000,000,000 to be raised in new taxes to balance the budget.

President Hoover's hope for early improvement in economic conditions is based on these considerations:

1.—He believes the banking crisis has definitely passed. In the nine weeks before establishment of the reconstruction finance corporation, 655 banks with deposits of $478,000,000 failed. In the past nine weeks, only seventy-seven banks closed, with deposits of $75,000,000. Furthermore, $250,000,000 has been brought out of hoarding. Mr. Hoover feels also that the federal reserve's credit expansion policy should prove a

The murder trial, interrupted at a crucial point by the aged attorney's illness, was to continue today in a conference of judge and opposing counsel with Darrow facing one of the most important battles of his case.

Four Children Victims Of Mystery Blaze Despite Heroic Rescues; Painter Arrested When Inflammables Found In Building

NEW YORK, April 16.—Six persons were killed in a mysterious fire in a Bronx tenement today and after a preliminary investigation police ordered a painter held on a technical charge of homicide.

The five dead included four members of one family, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dobromil and their twin sons, Jacob and Joseph. The other two to succumb were Edith Weinstein, 7, and Philip Weinstein, 10 year old son of a former boxer, Benjamin Weinstein who used the ring name of "Young Abe" Attell. Weinstein led his wife, one daughter and a son to safety but another son and daughter remained behind. Police rescued them but Philip Weinstein died later in a hospital.

Police discovered a large amount of paints, benzine and other inflammable materials in a locker under the stairway and arrested Benjamin Siegel, who admitted to ownership. The case will be presented to a grand jury.

A higher death toll was prevented by heroic efforts of firemen, police and volunteers. After the residents had been aroused by Max Himmelstein, a chauffeur, rescuers rushed through the flaming building carrying out those who had been overcome by smoke.

TROOPS DISPERSE MINE STRIKERS

JUVENILE WORKER HEARD WHEN WELFARE GROUP GATHERS HERE

"It is the duty of school authorities to take care of the problem child" when he enters the first grade rather than to wait until later, declared Dr. C. H. Calhoun, superintendent of the bureau of juvenile research, Columbus, in an address on "The Problem Child" before approximately 125 welfare workers, teachers, ministers, Boy Scout and Girl Scout leaders at Greene County's Conference on Child Health and Protection at the First M. E. Church Saturday morning.

Dr. Calhoun declared that instead of "the problem child" coming from homes that have been broken statistics show that it is more often the case where the child comes from homes where there are both parents, but who do not cooperate together for the welfare of the child. He praised the work of parent-teacher associations in helping to bring about this cooperation.

H. C. Aullman, superintendent of county schools, presided at the morning session which opened at 9:30 o'clock with singing followed by devotional exercises led by Dr. L. L. Gray, Jamestown. Prof. J. E. Balmer of the O. S. and S. O. Home sang two numbers.

A. E. Roberts, Cincinnati, Boy Scout executive, spoke on "Companionships" at the morning session.

Miss Mary Irene Atkinson, superintendent of the division of charities, Columbus, was scheduled to speak on "Modern Trends in Public Welfare Work" at the luncheon session. Luncheon was served by the Gleasons' Glass of the church.

Louis Hamerle, superintendent of Xenia public schools, presided at the afternoon meeting when Dr. D. Oberbauer, supervisor of health and physical education of the state of Ohio, was scheduled to speak on "Adventures of the Body" and Dr. Charles Scott Berry, director of the bureau of special education, Ohio State University, was to speak on "Adventures of the Mind."

EXPLOSIVE THEORY ABANDONED RESULT OF EXPERT FINDING

White's Committee
Thinks Gas Leak
Was Responsible

COLUMBUS, O., April 16.—Theory that the explosion which wrecked the $5,000,000 state office building Thursday was caused by gas accumulated in a subterranean chamber virtually was accepted by all investigators today.

The blast caused the deaths of eight persons, injury to three score and damage of $1,000,000.

The four members of a committee named by Governor White to ascertain the cause of the blast are of the opinion that it was gas, originating in the sub-basement, it was learned today after they had completed a preliminary examination.

On this committee are State Fire Marshal Frank Henry; Prosecutor Don Hoskins of Franklin County; Lester Redding, of Mansfield, member of the state board of architects, and Kenneth H. Osborn, Cleveland, of the Osborn Engineering Co.

Their decision, though not final, was reached after they had treaded their way carefully through the wrecked building and had questioned numerous injured workmen in Grant Hospital.

The committee was impressed, too, with the report made to it and to Governor White by experts of the DuPont Powder Co., who agreed unanimously that high explosives could not have caused the disaster.

The experts, F. B. Bickle, Pittsburgh, technical chemical engineer, H. C. Heywood, Columbus manager, and John Hanger, superintendent of the company's Columbus magazine, were assigned by the DuPont company to aid in the investigation at the request of state authorities.

Coincident with the report of the explosive experts, Governor White announced that Joseph C. Hostetter of the firm of Baker, Hostetter and Sidlow, Cleveland, would assume charge of the investigation at the governor's request.

Hostetter agreed to act as the governor's personal representative and was to co-operate with the governor's committee in questioning witnesses.

While almost every conclusion reached thus far leans toward the gas theory the committee members were puzzled as to just how the gas caused the blast.

They were endeavoring to learn today whether there were any abandoned gas pipes in the ground which may have led to some of the old buildings on the site. They learned from the gas company that only a two-inch pipe led into the building from a fourteen-inch main outside.

But just how the explosion occurred may be obscured by the death of Robert Pfefferle, 31, of Washington, whose body was found in the building ruins late Friday, twenty-four hours after the blast.

It was revealed for the first time that Pfefferle had gone to the subterranean chamber a moment before the blast to place forms over two holes that had been cut into the basement floor for door checks.

C. K. Neb, son of Theodore C. Neb, general superintendent of the construction work at the state office building, said that Pfefferle was in the sub-basement.

Whether Pfefferle struck a match in the basement or may have set off a spark with his hammer that would have ignited gaseous areas probably never will be known.

SEES IMPROVEMENT IN FIRST QUARTER

CLEVELAND, April 16.—A "great improvement" in financial conditions, notably in business sentiment, marked the first quarter of 1932, Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice-president of the Cleveland Trust Co., said in his current business survey.

The improvement, however, he said, has not progressed to the point of spurring actual business activity, largely because of continued credit deflation.

"Bank suspensions have almost ceased. Money that was held idle is being returned to the banks, and put back into circulation," Ayres said.

LEGION AUXILIARY WILL ANSWER CALL

Members of the women's auxiliary of Joseph P. Foody Post, No. 95, American Legion, are asked to respond with Legionnaires when the second annual Ohio American Legion emergency relief mobilization call is sounded over the radio Monday evening.

Auxiliary members are asked to meet at post hall, Court House, Monday evening at 7 o'clock for their regular meeting unless the mobilization call is sounded earlier. A short business meeting will be held and the group will take part in the program being planned by Legionnaires. A social hour in charge of the women will follow the meeting.

TAX RETURNS MUST BE FILED COMPLETE BEFORE WEDNESDAY

The state tax commission, through County Auditor James J. Curlett, called attention of all local taxpayers Saturday to the fact that personal property tax returns or amended returns may be made up to and including Wednesday, April 20 without penalty, under the twenty-day extension of time heretofore authorized.

It is declared absolutely essential, however, by the commission, that a fair and complete return be made by the taxpayer in 1932 if he desires to obtain immunity from civil or criminal liability for false returns made in previous years.

The commission announced it has been granted the right by the treasury department at Washington, D. C., to inspect federal income tax returns, and that the authority granted by the order will be used to verify tax returns of Ohio taxpayers.

It is expected that the inspection of federal returns will have the effect of making evasion of the new Ohio classified tax law an impossibility.

SENIORS WILL GIVE PATRIOTIC CLASS PLAY NEXT MONTH

Keeping in step with the times in this year of great colonial interest, the seniors at Xenia Central High School have chosen, appropriately enough, to present as their annual class play a production with a colonial setting that portrays vividly some of the old historical characters.

The play is entitled "Nathan Hale," written by Clyde Fitch and will be produced by the graduating class the nights of May 12 and 13 in Jean B. Elwell Auditorium at the high school.

Embodying all the requisites for a good play, the production has been described as one of the outstanding plays of past years.

Thirty-two students will appear in the dramatic offering and the cast, already selected by Miss Olive Allen, head of English department, who will direct the play, follows:

Charles Weaver as "Nathan Hale," Paul Baldwin as "Guy Fitzroy," William Eichman as "Lieut. Col. Knowlton," Richard Ross as "Captain Adams," John Maxwell as "Ebenezer Lebanon," John Lauman as "Tom Adams," David Short as "William Hull," Jane Fudge as "The Jefferson Boy," Harold McCoy as "The Talbot Boy," Andrew Frazer as "Jasper," Jack Whitney as the "Sentinel," Howard Thompson, Ray Butler, William Wagner, Richard Jordan and Orville Harner as "soldiers," Katherine Chew as "Alice Adams," Elizabeth Eavey as "Miss Knowlton," Martha Ann Baughn as "Angelica Knowlton," Annetta Price as "The Widow Chichester," Lois Bradley, Margaret Custer, Ruth Jenkins, Wilmetta Biegler, Katherine Kingsbury, Grace Thomas and Thelma Anderson as school girls; John Lauman (Tom Adams), Louis Cost, Harold McCoy, Elmer Gordon and Arthur Halstead as school boys.

The Misses Faye Cavanaugh, Agnes Ballantyne and Marjorie Orr are on the faculty committee assisting Miss Allen in supervision of the play.

An attractive array of merchandise prizes will be awarded in connection with the play.

Osborn - Fairfield

Mrs. Elsie Barran—Correspondent Phone No. 192

The operetta at Bath High School Thursday night, left every one who saw it feeling these boys and girls certainly must have practiced untiringly to accomplish such a successful performance.

The auditorium was filled before 8 o'clock and when the curtain rose the audience heard a chorus of young voices which was excellent. The Princess, Esther Gebhardt, a senior, has a voice which promises Osborn and Fairfield a coming opera star and she sang her numbers with ease and assurance as only a professional would.

Elwood Lobaugh, leading man, was excellent in his role also. Ruth Barringer as Zeta, sang beautifully and the Duke and Duchess, Clifford Barran and Maxine LeCount were clever in their comedian roles.

"Bitter Sweet Ann" was to all who attended a success.

Mr. Wm. Wall, Mr. Shanahan, Mr. Searcy, Mr. Short and several Osborn residents bowled last night at Recreation Hall, Dayton.

Walter Gebhardt of Miamisburg, is in Osborn attending business for a few days.

DR. GLENN ADAMS WILL JUDGE DOG PARADE PLANNED BY LEGION

Dr. Glenn Adams, Cincinnati, authority on birds and dogs, who has consented to be the judge of a "boy and his dog" parade to be held Saturday afternoon, May 7, under American Legion auspices, will also be guest speaker at a luncheon arranged in his honor early the same afternoon.

The luncheon will be at 1 o'clock at the Iron Lantern, Green St., scheduled to take place at 2:30 o'clock.

The affair will be known as a "sportsmen's luncheon" and a limited number of tickets will be sold to local sportsmen and others interested. Reservations will be limited to 100 and tickets, costing fifty cents, may be procured from O. H. Cornwell or Joe Spiro, members of the committee in charge.

Dr. Adams, who gives radio talks twice every week over station WLW in Cincinnati, had promised to return to this city to deliver an address on game birds and dogs, on the occasion recently when he appeared on the program of the annual banquet of the Greene County Fish and Game Protective Association.

Kenneth Swigart, this city, who was recently elevated to the rank of an Eagle Scout, will preside as toastmaster at the luncheon for Dr. Adams.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Behold, happy is the man whom God correcteth; therefore, despise not thou the chastening of the Almighty.—Job, v, 17.

JOLT TO CRIME

The promotion of Judge James H. Wilkerson from the United States District Court at Chicago, where his courageous defiance of gangdom has won nationwide approbation, to the United States Circuit Court bench, advanced a step on Tuesday, when the Senate Judiciary subcommittee, after one of the longest and most searching investigations of a judicial appointment ever made by the Senate, voted three to two to recommend confirmation of his appointment.

Strong opposition to confirming Judge Wilkerson's promotion came from two quarters: Overly from organized labor, covertly from organized vice and crime. Certain of his decisions as District Judge, chiefly connected with injunctions, were interpreted by the former as anti-labor. Sending Al Capone up for 11 years was enough to antagonize the latter. Gangdom tried to put the Judge on the spot.

Senator Borah, chairman of the subcommittee, who voted for confirmation, explained that he did so because Judge Wilkerson's name has become associated "with the effort of the good people of Chicago to hold possession of their great city against organized crime." The defeat of Wilkerson would be hailed by gangdom as a victory for it, over one of its most fearless and unrelenting foes. While admitting that two injunctions issued by Judge Wilkerson seemed to justify criticism, Senator Borah pointed out that "the injustice of such injunctions has been largely remedied by the Norris anti-injunction bill."

The Norris-LaGuardia bill, which has become law since labor's opposition to Judge Wilkerson's appointment was launched, would give the extension of opposition to the floor of the Senate the appearance of a desire for revenge for something past and gone and which cannot, to any important extent, occur again. Organized labor would thus be found fighting shoulder to shoulder with gangdom, without any excuse for an alliance that would be as distasteful to it as to other decent people of the country. With the protection of the Norris-LaGuardia law in its possession, American labor can now afford to forget the past and lend its support to one who is fighting its battle, as well as that of the country generally, against organized crime.

"CRIB" OF CHINA

A silk handkerchief covered with almost microscopic Chinese characters was recently presented to the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago. The Museum's Orientalist identifies it as a "crib" used by Chinese students in their civil service examinations two centuries and more ago. If that be true, cheating in examinations is not a modern invention of Occidental youth.

Some day an excavator digging in the ruins of Ur or Tyre may turn up a tablet covered with microscopic hieroglyphics, which will prove that "cribbing" was known before the days of Kang Hsi and in other countries than China. One suspects that this deplorable device of certain youths is as ancient as the tricks of their elders to evade payment of taxes, which archaeology has just discovered to be as old as taxes themselves.

The more we moderns dig around in the graves of past civilizations the more patent it becomes to us that there is little new, good or bad, under the sun. "Cribbing" change in form with changes in tongues and manners of writing; but cribbing started a long time ago and probably will continue, as long as human nature is what it is today—and that is about what it was yesterday and the day before.

When one recalls the grueling examinations to which Chinese aspirants to political preferment were subjected in their uncomfortable "cells," a certain feeling is unescapable that if "cribbing" ever was justifiable—as it never was or can be—Chinese literati were entitled to carry "literary" handkerchiefs to the ordeal with them.

SAVING FOWL

Confronted by an alarming reduction of migratory waterfowl in the United States, the Senate Committee on Conservation of Wild Life Resources is casting about for means to stem the slaughter.

Proposals have been made to tax sportsmen one cent for each shell or to issue $1 migratory game licenses. The money thus derived would be used for the propagation of wild life.

One fly remains in the ointment, however. Destruction of birds for sport would continue practically unabated under these rules. True conservation cannot be practiced until the killing of animals merely for sport is radically reduced if not done away with. Even limiting the daily bag may not bring about the desired results, for sport hunters are said to be growing more and more numerous.

Of course, an end of game hunting for sport cannot be obtained in a day or a year. But with "Be Kind to Animals Week" scheduled for April 18-23, the time seems appropriate to think on these things.

The doctrine of humanness as professed by the American Humane Education Society does not limit the field to domestic animals. It includes wild life as well. Yet many persons who are highly indignant at any cruelty practiced upon domestic animals enjoy the "sport" of killing waterfowl, rabbits, deer and other animals.

Camera shooting provides as great a thrill as rifle shooting and the results are much more gratifying for they are lasting—without costs of taxidermy. It necessitates the study of wild animals to learn their habits. It requires skill to obtain a good camera shot.

TROUBLE AHEAD?

Teaching In Shadow Of Bunker Hill; Character Education Carried On In An Historic Spot

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education,
Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

A little while ago I was in Boston to speak before the Youth Conference of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs, when I had the rare privilege to visit my old friend Joseph Egan, who has charge of several public schools of that city. Those schools are on the historic grounds of Bunker Hill. The building where his office is, stands on the ashes of that part of Charlestown burned by the British in 1775. This whole school area now is a "down town" underprivileged section of the city. "But I have the finest children of the world," says Mr. Egan.

Here, within the shadow of Bunker Hill Monument, has been worked out by Mr. Egan and his fine corps of teachers concrete material in character education, used in many public schools of our nation, representing all sorts of economic levels, particularly in New England.

As I had expected to see the school children here look happy, and the teachers seem to be kind and sympathetic. Before entering a certain room, Mr. Egan said, "Notice the lad in the front seat of the first row."

Poems That Live

NEW LIFE

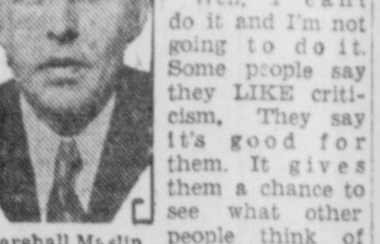

Spring comes laughing down the valley
All in white, from the snow
Where the winter's armies rally
Loth to go.
Beauty while her garments shower
On the world where they pass—
Hawthorn hedges, trees in flower,
Daisies in the grass.
Tremulous with longings dim,
Thickets by the river's rim
Have begun to dream of green.
Every tree is loud with birds,
Bourgeois heart—do thy part!
Raise a slender stalk of wood
From a root unseen.
—Amelia Josephine Burr (1878—)

Outbursts of a Man
Who Was Criticized
And Didn't Like It.
So you think I shouldn't mind being criticized? You think I should take criticism and smile and pretend that I like it. That's what you think is it?

Well, I can't do it and I'm not going to do it. Some people say they like criticism. They say it's good for them. It gives them a chance to see what other people think of them, shows them the way to healthy reform of their bad habits.

LIARS! Nobody likes to be criticized.

But the trouble with you is that you told me the truth. I could have stood it if you had made a mistake, if you had picked out something that wasn't true to criticize. Then I could have felt "hurt" because you knew me so little that you could think that of me. I could have defended myself at length—with many words; explained just how you were wrong—convinced you that you were bound and utterly mistaken—made YOU unhappy. But you didn't do that. With the keen eye of my own conscience, you looked at me and saw me as I am. You ripped aside my little pretenses, my awkward efforts, my vain hypocrites, and told me the truth. It was a ghastly thing to do, to tell me that somebody else would see me as I AM. I left me stripped, defenseless, yammering. And YOU did it. Don't tell me it was a friendly act. Perhaps it was, but I don't like to admit it. Hundreds of times I've said: "Tell me the truth. Be frank with me." But why didn't you have sense enough to know that I didn't mean that? Nobody does, when he says such things.

But there you were and you criticized me fairly. Maybe you were grumpy, perhaps you got out of the wrong side of the bed this morning and wanted to revenge your crankiness on your friend. So you picked on me. . . . and told me the truth. There you were and here I am. . . . mad and upset and ashamed of myself. Boasting all these years that I was strong enough to stand a little honest criticism—and the first time I get it I break down and yowl like a baby.

Well, just remember me the next time you feel like blurring out the truth to a friend.

When we left the room my host added: "That boy was habitually tardy and his parents were unable to help him improve. I asked the lad whether he would like to water a plant in the office. I hung it so that it could not easily be reached by him, and told him he would be permitted to water the plant only if he would water it each school day at exactly 8:45 a. m. He was delighted and for three months now he has never failed, therefore never has been late, and is one of our most earnest and trustworthy children."

"You remember the girl who spoke so well?" Did you see how neat and clean she was? She used to come to school with filthy face and hands. Her teacher would send her out to wash herself each day, and every morning her problem was the same. Finally this girl of the fifth grade was assigned to help two clean, neat little girls of the third grade with their arithmetic. Nothing more was done; but from that day this Nora has been as attractive as she is today in her personal appearance. She saw how attractive the other little girls had made themselves and had decided to be attractive too.

"But how about the little girls?" I inquired. "They did not mind, but looked upon the matter as routine; and if they did they probably told the older child about her dirty hands and face."

Mr. Egan does not have much faith in merely preaching to children concerning what is right to do. "Character training is a matter of right appeal to the emotions," he said repeatedly while I visited classes with him. "If we can get the child to want to do right, we have won success. Even in such matters as good oral English, our efforts are in vain if we trust to mechanical correction. Our task is to motivate the child to want to speak accurately, and he will do the rest. To interrupt a child in class to correct his grammar was him far more harm than good."

"Does the same principle apply to the home?" I asked.

"Certainly," Mr. Egan answered. I suppose you and I heartily agree with Mr. Egan.

Use spring greens in your menus. Nature seems to have grown them knowing man needed a tonic in the spring of the year. The home economics bureau of the United States department of agriculture suggests the menu.

Today's Recipes
Wilted Dandelion Greens—Two or three quart dandelion greens, four tablespoons bacon fat, one-fourth cup mild vinegar, one teaspoon salt. Wash the greens thoroughly, and cut into small pieces with scissors. Heat the bacon fat, vinegar and salt in a skillet, add the greens, cover and cook at moderate heat until the greens are wilted. Serve at once.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Gelatin Ice Cream
Here is a recipe for gelatin ice cream, which proved to be a life saver for making a dessert in a hurry. Dissolve one package of any desired flavor of gelatin in the usual pint of hot water and let cool for a few moments, by standing in cold water. Be sure it has stopped steaming before adding a pint of ice cream. Stir the cream in until lumps have disappeared and the mixture begins to congeal. Place in refrigerator or cold place until same consistency as ordinary gelatin when served.

To Make 'Em Good
The secret of making good sandwiches is like the secret of making everything else in the culinary line, using infinite care, precision and the unsparring employment of good materials.

Sandwiches fall into two types, those which are primarily nutritive, and those which are eaten eagerly when the first hunger for meat has been satisfied. These are primarily the sandwiches which may be ruined by careless handling, as the elements of which they are composed, jam, fruits, nuts cream etc., are not so easily handled as meat, fish, chicken, etc.

Remember with meat sandwiches lettuce, mayonnaise, Russian dressing, sweetened mustard, horseradish, chopped pickles, olives, and various relishes add immeasurably to their tastiness and acceptability.

Tells How Milk Helps Us

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Milk contains 675 calories a quart, made up largely from its carbohydrates and fat. It has 30 grams of protein to the quart. It has 87 per cent water. It contains vitamins A and B in good quantities, and usually C and D also. It has the essential minerals—calcium, phosphorus and iron. Milk is the complete food.

Complete as it is, its balance is not perfect. It has no bulk (no residue or roughage).

For an exclusive diet, milk is not sufficiently concentrated; a person would have to drink too much of it to satisfy all his nutritional needs; and there is too much water.

Other faults are that its iron content is low; that to make it clean, it must be pasteurized, which destroys the vitamin C, and the presence of vitamin D is not certain or regular.

But it is so nearly perfect that these faults can afford to be overlooked. For old, as well as young, it should be an accessory part of every diet, almost of every meal.

"The protein of milk is of the highest value and particularly rich, as compared to other foods, in lysine and tryptophane," writes Dr. Har-Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendenning can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Clois Anderson's Abattoirs, Coates Barbers, Xenia Chick Hatchery and Spring Valley constitute the four new entries in the National Softball League this season, and all four should have plenty to say about ultimate disposition of the league title.

While the Spring Valley team is an unknown quantity, the other three outfits, it is indicated by their eligibility lists, will present strong lineups.

Spring Valley and the Xenia Chick Hatchery will meet April 27 and Coates Barbers will face Anderson's team April 29.

Herman Wells, former hurler for the Critteron, will pitch for the Barbers; "Pino" Perrine, formerly of the Red Wings, will be moundman for Anderson's and Lloyd Downey, who wore a Graham Paint uniform in 1931, will preside on the mound for the Hatchery. The Valley hurler remains to be seen.

The following players are on the roster of Coates Barbers: Jay Burnett, Bob Yenkey and Paul Fuller, identified last year with the Red Wings; Herman Wells, last year's Critteron speedball twirler; Harry "Atlas" Smith, star pitcher of Paintersville last season; William Christ, formerly of Krippendorf; Allen Mendenhall and C. W. Lane, of the 1931 Wood's Barbers; Lou McCoy, in past years regular catcher for the Lang Chevrolet; Fred Lang, of the All-Stars last season; Lawrence Whittington and Gardner Gearhart, two veteran hardball players.

The Xenia Chick Hatchery roster includes players formerly associated with the Graham Paints, Wood's Barbers, All-Stars, St. Brigid and Krippendorf.

Former Graham Paint players on the Hatchery team are: R. Briley, J. H. L. Cope, W. Cope, A. Haverstick, L. Downey, J. Cain; former Krippendorf softballers are V. Jenkins and P. Jones. Joe Zenni formerly stopped for St. Brigid, Bob Shaw was with Woods and Ernest Blackburn played with the All-Stars.

Anderson's will have a team that should prove a real contender in the league. Besides pitcher Eugene Perrine, the Abattoir roster embraces the following stars: Eugene Leashy, Tim Wakeley and Orville Snell, of the Red Wings; George and Clarence Anderson from Krippendorf and St. Brigid; Clarence Greene from Krippendorf; John Ernest from the Critteron; Delbert Kersey and Ernest Milburn from the Paints; Walter P. Peters from Wood's and Dick Birk from the Red Wings. Kersey will be field captain.

The Spring Valley eligibility list, submitted by H. S. Noggle, bears the following eleven names, with one more to be added if desired: H. A. Blair, R. Noggle, Sam Stevens, Dave Leshy, Todd Walton, Marvin Compton, Neal Compton, Aleck and Harvey Huff, William Griffy and H. Goodwin.

DAYTON GUARDS WILL OPPOSE MERCHANTS IN PRACTICE GAME

The Dayton Guards baseball team has been substituted for the Rest Haven Park club as the season's first opponent for the Xenia Merchants in a practice contest to be staged Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on the Washington Park diamond, it was announced Saturday.

This Dayton nine was one of the strongest in this locality last year. It is also disclosed that the Xenia management has completed two new player-dug-outs at the local ball yard and that a large supply of bats has been procured for the Merchants, giving the players a larger assortment to select from than ever before.

All local baseball players desiring to try out for places on the Xenia roster are asked to report at the park at 1 p. m. Sunday, an hour and one-half before game time.

Starting lineup of the Merchants for the informal season's opener will include either Roy Gibbs or Brill pitching, Schlosser catching, Blake at first base, probably R. Ruse, of Blanchester, at second; his cousin Lee Ruse, local boy, at shortstop; Lamb at third, Durnbaugh, Johnson and Conley in the outfield.

off five minutes after she departed.

Earlier in the night Samuel Krashow and Martin Bernstein, operatives of the central detective bureau, of Brooklyn, drove up to the estate they said they had an appointment with Lindbergh, but when asked about their connections with the case, Bernstein remarked cryptically:

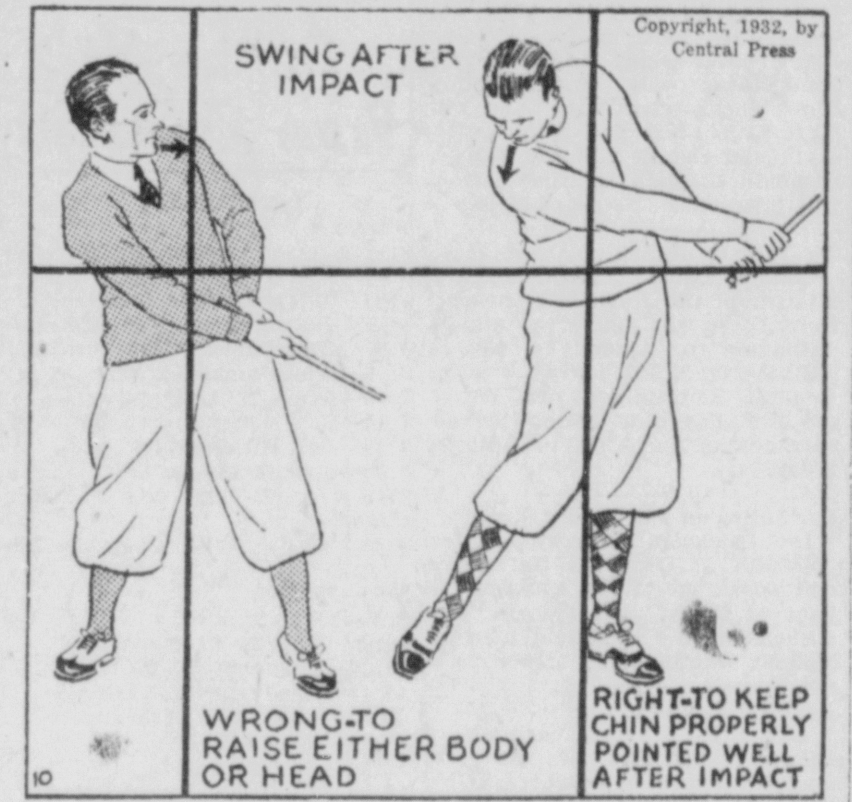

"Our activities are of such a delicate nature that to discuss them might cause serious injury or death of the child."

In the metropolitan area Condon's activity continued. Col. Henry Breckinridge, Lindbergh's legal advisor, was at Condon's Bronx home throughout yesterday afternoon. During some of this time Condon was absent, in one instance to deliver one of his lectures.

New York police kept up their efforts to trace one of the $20 bank notes which was in the $50,000 ransom money paid by Condon to the supposed kidnappers in a fake deal on April 2.

In Norfolk, the three negotiators maintained their optimism. Rear Admiral Guy H. Barge and John Hughes Curtis, who returned from a four day trip early yesterday, reported they were continuing their efforts to restore the baby. Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, the other negotiator gave new assurances of the infant's safety.

ACTION AFTER IMPACT WILL BETRAY SWING FAULT IS SAID

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is No. 10 of a series of golf lessons by Alex Morrison, golf's star teacher. Watch for next.

By ALEX J. MORRISON
Golf's Foremost Technician
Written Exclusively for Central Press and The Gazette

THE ACTION that takes place immediately after you have hit the ball is just as important as the earlier stages of your swing. It is true that the ball leaves the face of the club instantly and that the moves you perform after impact have no influence on the flight of the ball, but, what you do after the moment of impact indicate exactly what you have done before striking the ball.

During the correct swing the attention is centered on the idea of keeping the head from lifting or turning until well after the ball has been hit. After impact, instead of the player swinging the club, the momentum of the club begins to act, first upon the wrists, then the arms and the body.

This switch from the player swinging the club to the club swinging the player, as it might be termed, is indicated by the turnover of the wrists. As you can see in the correct illustration above, this turnover takes place, not before or even as the ball is being hit but sometime after the moment of impact.

I'm afraid this is not true in your swing!

That the turnover of your wrists takes place before or as the ball is being hit is indicated by the lifting or turning of your head before the moment of impact.

You do not believe that you look up before you have hit the ball? I guarantee that action pictures of your swing would show that whenever you look up in any swing, you do so before you have struck the ball. I don't have to tell you that the moment you look up you lose control of your swing.

The answer is: In order to make sure that you will strike the ball to the best of your ability, keep your head in the proper position until well after the moment of impact.

FOOTBALL COMES TO LIFE FOR SPRING PRACTICE

Football, a dead issue since last Thanksgiving Day, staged a comeback at Xenia Central High School Thursday afternoon.

The thud of cleated shoes against pigskins resounded at Cox Athletic Field once again. All the activity meant that spring football practice had officially been begun by prospective members of the 1932 Buccaneers grid squad.

About thirty candidates turned out for the initial session, which lasted an hour. The gridders indulged in an extremely light practice, in the main devoted to kicking and passing and learning signals. Blocking and tackling will be taboo during the spring training period.

Spring practice will continue daily for ten days or two weeks, Coach Walter "Pinky" Wilson announced, and is designed to give him some idea of what football talent will be available when the regular season rolls around in the fall.

No football equipment was issued Thursday afternoon, the athletes being attired in old clothes.

CADET RIFLE CLUB FINISHES NINTH

Competing against the "elite" of the junior rifle teams in the United States, the Cadet Rifle Club of the O. S. and S. O. Home finished ninth among "A" division teams in the third series of bi-weekly junior team matches fired under auspices of the National Rifle Association.

No other Ohio junior team was ranked ahead of the cadet shooters, who scored 492 out of a possible 500 points. Perfect scores were registered by Fresno High School of Fresno, Calif., and Western High at Washington, D. C.

boon to banking and industry generally.

2. Mr. Hoover is certain that the $2,000,000,000 veterans' bonus will not pass. A poll of the senate convinces him that it will be defeated in that body, if not in the house.

Bonus advocates, however, were cheered by two developments: Rep. Bankhead, Alabama, an influential Democratic leader, announced he would vote for it; John Simpson, president of the National Farmers' Union, with a membership of over 300,000, placed his organization squarely in favor of paying the bonus.

3. The tax bill. The President feels there has been too much worry over the revenue measure. He admits the bill must contain some special levies which may tend to slow up activity in certain lines of business. But he feels that the important thing is to get the bill out of the way as soon as possible and that worries will then subside.

4. Governmental economy. The President considers that it is now only a matter of settling details in the economy program to cut government costs by $200,000,000 and balance the budget.

COURT DENIES REHEARING IN SCHOOL FIGHT

judges in Dayton last Monday, plaintiff's counsel had sought to show that the test along the lines suggested by the appeals court was valueless, in that it was more of a floor test than a wall test.

As to the feasibility of the test proposed, the appellate court held that insufficient proof of the alleged impracticability of the test was offered to justify a rehearing.

Attention of the court had been drawn to the fact it made no comment in its recent opinion upon the bonding of the load-bearing walls under consideration.

On this question, the judges declared they find in the record of the case testimony in two places to the effect that the walls were bonded at least every fifth course by using cinder block on one side and hollow tile on the other, and lapping the cinder block across the tile.

This is the usual method of bonding such walls, the court held, adding that "we are not convinced that this is not the proper form of construction, nor that the bond is insufficient."

The Story of an Unemployed Girl

CHAPTER 43
THEY DECIDED to invest ten cents in a Sunday paper, because the want ads were more plentiful than any other day.

"But even this employment agency isn't free," said Eve, pulling the classified section from the bulk of paper and spreading it out on the couch between Lillian and her.

"Costs a dime for the paper and then subway fare and postage to trace the jobs and when you count postage and car fare a dollar fades in no time."

But their desperate efforts to get jobs seemed less vivid right then as they had been to a chain restaurant where you could eat all the breakfast you wanted for thirty cents.

Lillian had ordered a large breakfast—and Eve, a cup of coffee. So for forty cents they both had managed a good meal.

"Job hunting seemed less a gamble, with a chance in thousand to win."

Courage was easy on a full stomach. But when they saw the jobless who had lost courage, hope and the desire for either it was easy to understand how step by step they approached the abyss and let go.

Lillian had one part of the classified section. Eve the other.

"Listen to this, Eve. No—read it yourself! We both could go after that tomorrow morning first thing!" Lillian tore out the ad and gave it to Eve.

WANTED—GIRLS
Girls between 18 and 26 who can earn up to $2 an hour—$16 a day—through our easy, pleasant plan. You may add a handsome sum to your income month after month. You need no capital. You need no experience. Start today earning money! Would you like to have an extra bank account to meet sudden emergencies brought on by the depression period? Your earnings start the day you receive our offer! Without obligation communicate with Mrs. Bertram, Hotel Lexington, Lexington, Room 459.

Although it was only a few minutes after eight the next morning when Lillian and Eve stood outside of the hotel room a dozen other girls waited there when they arrived.

Eve raised her hand to knock on the door.

"We were asked to wait a few minutes until her husband finished breakfast. That was twenty minutes ago," a girl said.

So they waited in a sort of formation. The assortment of girls out early for work eyed each other. The ad had called for "girls." Some of them had not been girls in ten years, but from their eyes gleamed a greedy hope—as if each felt she needed work the most.

Lillian felt, as she had so many times, sorry for their shabby clothes, their cracked shoes, frayed gloves, their pinched nervous faces.

Finally the door opened and a woman who appeared in her early thirties wearing a knitted sports suit and with her hair boyishly bobbed, said: Good morning. Come in—won't you? All of you?

Her voice was high-pitched and pleasant. And the sitting room of the hotel suite smelled deliciously of hot coffee. A hotel waiter was removing a breakfast tray.

PLAINTIFF LOSES BATTLE OVER FENCE

Ella Croker, colored, lost in the Court of Appeals her effort to require removal of a fence obstructing an alley in the rear of her property when the appellate court, in a decision made public Friday, affirmed the Greene County courts, finding in favor of Arthur and Lillie Jefferson, colored, E. Main St.

The appeals court decided the plaintiff had failed to establish the proper degree of proof of her contention that the alley had been in public use for at least twenty-one years and had acquired the status of a public alley. A mandatory injunction had been sought in the suit against the Jeffersons.

It is admitted in the case that no alley appears on the plat of Mitchell's addition to the city of Xenia, wherein the lots in question are located, the appeals court announced.

It seemed so simple. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Jackie Draws Mirth; New Film About Birth

Jackie Cooper has left for New York to make personal appearances with the opening of his new picture "Limpy," in which he is co-starred with Chic Sale, the renowned specialist.

For the final scenes of this film, Jackie had to stage a fight with another boy. As they squared off before the camera, the company anxiously gathered closer.

Suddenly Jackie stopped and waved them back. "Everybody stay away," he shouted, "there's no Marquis of Gooseberry rules for this fight."

Hôtels, union depots, steamships, have been the subject of film melodramas, and now it will be the Maternity Hospital. Though no publicity is going out about it, Warner Brothers are quietly preparing a screen treatment of "Life Begins," the play by Mrs. Mary MacDougal Axelson which recently closed on Broadway.

The story deals with characters from all walks of life, two of the most melodramatic ones being a murderer and a cabaret girl. Through it all, the theme is the glorification of motherhood. The story recalls "Night Nurse" in which Barbara Stanwyck starred, with many of the scenes laid in a hospital.

The starting date on Elissa Landi's new picture, "Burnt Offering," may be delayed while Fox looks for an actor to replace Ralph Bellamy, who has been switched to "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." If a substitute can be found, the film will get under way at once.

Miss Landi is to have two leading men in this picture. One will be Alexander Kirkland, who has been busy at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer of late in "Strange Interlude." In the Landi film, Kirkland will portray a German officer. The story takes place in Africa about 1914 and Miss Landi plays the part of an English girl. Frank Lloyd directs.

Miss Landi's new book, "House for Sale," is not the only literary offering coming from Hollywood this year. A survey shows the screen colony is a veritable fiction factory, with the following new books listed: "Summer Hotel," by P. J. Wolfson, author of "Bodies Are Dust"; "Your Next President" by Eddie Cantor and David Freeman; "Way of a Lancer," by Richard Boleslavski; "Benedict Arnold, Military Racketeer," by Edward Dean Sullivan; "Tall Tales from Hollywood," by Tay Garnett; "Free

ALPHA KAPPA ALPHA SORORITY MEETING AT WILBERFORCE U.

The second annual regional conference of the Great Lakes Region, Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, opened a two days' session in Mitchell Hall, Wilberforce University, Friday evening. The sessions are presided over by Miss Mattie D. Jackson of Cincinnati, director. Twenty-three chapters are represented by one hundred delegates from cities in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, and Michigan.

Meetings Saturday are under auspices of members of Zeta Chapter. Friday meetings, including the reception of regional delegates, were in charge of Rho Omega Chapter, and for Saturday evening from seven to ten o'clock, the semi-formal prom, honoring visitors and delegates, will be given in the Beacom gymnasium and sponsored by the Delta Chapter, Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity and Zeta Chapter. Saturday morning registration was completed. The slogan during the sessions was "On to Los Angeles for 1932 Boule." The conference theme during all the sessions was "Better Sisterhood."

The welcome address was given by Mrs. Grace Byrd, basileus of Rho Omega Sorority, Wilberforce. The response was given by a representative of one of the chapters. After the secretary called the roll of delegates the presiding officer appointed the temporary officers and standing committees. The reports given by the chapters were encouraging, although the depression had much to do with retarding the progress of the newly established chapters.

Soror Margaret Davis Bowen, past regional director, read the minutes of the Boule of Cincinnati.

Miss Cora Jordan White, secretary of the Y. W. C. A., Columbus and a prominent social worker, spoke on "The Changing World."

The morning and afternoon sessions of Saturday were given to round table discussions, led by Soror Grace Byrd and the regional director's report by Soror Mattie D. Jackson, and discussions on recommendations for Boule constitutional amendments.

HOME ECONOMICS SUBJECTS DISCUSSED

Mrs. Weldon McKay, New Burlington, was hostess to a group of home economic extension enthusiasts from Greene and Clinton Counties Wednesday afternoon.

The subject of discussion for the afternoon consisted of two types of home furnishings problems. Miss Ruth Radford, Greene County home demonstration agent, gave a demonstration on repair of chairs, in which some of the group replaced chair seats of both rush and split bottom styles. Miss Elizabeth Masters, Clinton County, home demonstration agent gave a demonstration of wood finishes suitable for different kinds of floors. Miss Masters also discussed the care of wood finishes.

The group was much interested in the subjects discussed and is anxious to have another such meeting in the future.
